What We Do

CITT promotes excellence and advancement for supply chain and logistics professionals by providing certification, learning and development programs as well as cooperative networking opportunities.

The Benefits of CITT Membership

With the increase in the complexity involved in managing a supply chain, the demand for certified logistics professionals has risen exponentially. The CITT designation is industry's most respected and widely held designation.

To hold the CITT designation, a CITT-certified professional must complete a comprehensive program of study, have at least five-years related work experience and maintain an annual membership in the CITT.

The CITT's intensive Program of Study features a job-specific curriculum taught by experienced industry professionals. The courses are designed to teach both the technical and managerial competencies that are essential to successfully manage today's complex, integrated supply chains.

Senior managers and hiring agents know that CITT-certified professionals demonstrate a substantial and diversified foundation of knowledge and experience that clearly sets them apart from their peers.
